A NOTE ABOUT OUR SPECIAL WILD RICE — Probably the thing we are best known for up here is our Wild Rice. Personally we ship very little out of the state, and have just recently sold it through our catalog. The reason is that this catalog is printed long before the rice crop is harvested, and it is impossible to quote a fair price based on the growing season and the market supply. But we have estimated a quantity based on this fall's crop which looks very good. We have fixed a price based on past years' averages and gone slightly below that. The result is that you will be able to get the best Wild Rice obtainable throughout the fall and winter and hopefully until the crop is harvested again next year. We can possibly supply everyone with any quantity they may want. The price will remain low for this period. Instructions and recipes included.

REVOLUTIONARY DICE — The game of dice was a very popular pastime in colonial days. Soldiers of the revolution made them by pounding lead bullets into irregular square shapes and etched the holes with bayonet points. Many authentic 18th century dice similar to these replicas were found near army encampments of 1776 - 1780.
